

Dr. Brian Wong is an HKU-100 Assistant Professor in Philosophy at the University of Hong Kong (HKU) and a Non-Resident Honorary Fellow at the Center for China Analysis. His research examines the ethics and dynamics of authoritarian regimes and their foreign policies, historical and colonial injustices, and the intersection of geopolitics, political and moral philosophy, and technology. At HKU, he serves as a fellow at the Centre on Contemporary China and the World, sits on the steering committee for the Hong Kong Ethics Lab, and advises the Interdisciplinary Dynamics: Ethics, AI, and Society research center at the Institute of Data Science. He also serves as an associate editor for the journal Inquiry, having presented and written on issues of public philosophy for the Journal of Practical Ethics, the American Philosophical Association, and the Royal Institute of Philosophy.

Brian regularly briefs prominent multinational corporations, hedge funds, family offices, and investors on macro risks in emerging markets across Asia and Europe, also serving as a fellow and advisor on strategy at the Oxford Global Society, an independent Oxford-based think tank. Brian has contributed to the Carter Center U.S.-China Perception Monitor, the U.S.-Asia Law Institute, the Institute of Art and Ideas, and Project Syndicate on a wide range of topics encompassing the geopolitics of Asia. As a columnist at the Hong Kong Economic Journal, his writings have appeared in Foreign Policy, Aeon, the Financial Times (Chinese version), the Diplomat, Fortune, the South China Morning Post, Nikkei, the Japan Times, and the Hindu on China's foreign policy, interactions between mass opinions and attitudes and government policies, and the intricacies of state rhetoric and discourse. Brian's views have been featured and quoted by outlets and publications including BBC, CGTN, CNN, CNBC, the Financial Times, Al Jazeera, and Politico.

Thitinan Pongsudhirak is Professor of International Relations at Chulalongkorn University's faculty of political science and former Director (2006-2022) and currently Senior Fellow at its Institute of Security and International Studies in Bangkok. Thitinan has held visiting positions at Johns Hopkins University, Stanford University, University of Victoria in New Zealand, and Yangon University, and currently serves on several editorial boards of academic journals, including Journal of Democracy. He has authored a host of articles, books, book chapters and over 1,000 opinion articles in mass media such as Project Syndicate, The Bangkok Post, Nikkei Asian Review, The Straits Times, South China Morning Post, International New York Times, and Financial Times. As an analyst on Thailand/ASEAN-Southeast Asia, his comments and views have appeared regularly in international media, including Al Jazeera, BBC, CNN, Bloomberg, CNBC, NHK, DW, among others. Prior to his academic and think-tank career, Thitinan worked for the BBC World Service and the Economist Intelligence Unit (EIU) in London. His current work focuses on the comparative politics and geopolitics/geoeconomics of ASEAN and the Indo-Pacific in view of the US-China rivalry and conflict.

In 2015, he was recognised for excellence in opinion writing by Society of Publishers in Asia (SOPA). During 2017-present, he holds the appointment as International Advisory Board Member of Asia-New Zealand Foundation (ANZF). In March 2018, he was appointed ASEAN@50 Fellow by New Zealand's Minister of Foreign Affairs & Trade. In May 2019, he was selected as Australia-ASEAN Fellow at Sydney's Lowy Institute. From 2021-present, he is senior advisor for geopolitics with Friedrich Ebert Foundation (FES). From January 2023-present, he is independent expert of ADMM+ Cybersecurity and Information Centre of Excellence (ACICE). In January 2024, Thitinan was awarded a commendation by the Japanese government for his work on Japan-Thailand and Japan-ASEAN relations. During October 2024–March 2025, he is a visiting professor at the Southeast Asia Centre (SEAC) of the London School of Economics. For the past two decades, he has been a columnist with The Bangkok Post. Thitinan completed degrees at the University of California at Santa Barbara (with Distinction) and Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, with a PhD from London School of Economics which won the UK's best dissertation prize in 2002.